

Where are Pallet Lifts used?

Pallet lifts find ready application in shipping and warehousing industries. Trucks, trains and ships transport tons of pallets around the world. Loading the pallets into these vehicles and then unloading them requires pallet lifts at both the source and destination ends, besides moving them into and out of warehouses where they are stored. A pallet lift is also used to arrange the pallets into appropriately segregated categories for ease of use later by other handlers. Pallet lifts are also designed to lift several numbers of pallets in one go, which is often the requirement of high-volume warehousing companies.